He was an avid fisherman and belonged to the exclusive Tadenac Fishing Club, and was also a collector of art and Oriental rugs. He had strong ties with the Armenian-Canadian business community and in his later years served on the Board of a Canadian "think and do tank" the Mosaic Institute.

Series 2: Employment

Date range: 1945-2015

Extent: 0.65 m of textual records (5 boxes)

Scope and content: Series consists of records of Prof. Safarian's employment inside and outside of academia. It includes records related to his search for academic appointments upon completing his doctorate, his resignation from the University of Saskatchewan, and his activity at the University of Toronto in various capacities at the Faculty of Management, the Centre for International Studies (CIS), Institute for International Business (IIB), and Trinity College. Files related to Myron J. Gordon and Trinity College are noteworthy for the insights they provide into the conferral of awards and honors, as is the file on the CIS-CEES which documents the operation of the CIS and

Prof. Safarian's decision to leave the directorship. The series also includes records of his employment activity outside of academia, including for the Justice Department, UNCTAD, the Canadian Institute for Advanced Research (CIAR) and others. Records include correspondence, curriculum vitae, reports, legal documents, contracts, meeting minutes, and paper drafts.

Notes: Researchers should consult Series 3 (Professional Activities) for records pertaining to Prof. Safarian's unpaid activities. Records pertaining to his teaching and research can be found in Series 4 and Series 7, respectively. See also accession B2006-0030 for a more comprehensive set of records related to the CIAR.

Arrangement: Files in this series are arranged in two sections: records relating to employment within academia, followed by a section on employment outside of academia. The files in this latter section are arranged by employer, then chronologically within those sub-sections.

Access: All files are open with the exception of the following files listed below:

Series 3: Professional activities

Date range: 1966-2015

Extent: 0.65 m of textual records (5 boxes) and 7 photographs

Scope and content: Series consists of records documenting Prof. Safarian's relationships and involvement in activities and organizations outside of his formal (paid) roles within academia and other sectors. A large component of this series relates to his interactions with scholars from the former Soviet Union (especially Armenia) and the Armenian-Canadian business community, and his service as board member of the Mosaic Institute and co-editor of the multi-volume series Hong Kong Bank of Canada Papers on Asia. It also includes some material documenting his involvement with the Canadian-American Committee; the Pacific Economic Cooperation Committee (PECC); the Ontario Centre for International Business (OCIB); the Tadenac Fishing Club; the Naval Officers' Association of Canada (NOAC) scholarship selection committee; and an economics reading group Strategy 10. Also included are records revealing shorter-term professional activity such as consulting and reviewing of others' manuscripts. Material in this series is especially noteworthy for the insights it provides on the interconnectedness of social networks (ethnic, recreational, etc.) and professional ones. Tadenac Club files may be of interest to researchers examining issues surrounding recreational 'conservationists' and Indigenous communities in rural Ontario. Records in this series include correspondence, travel journals, articles and notes, manuscript drafts and comments, meeting minutes, reports and photographs.

Notes: See accession B1996-0034 for other records related to the PECC and B2006-0030 for other records related to the Canadian-American Committee.

Arrangement: Files in this series are divided into two sections. The first section is arranged by organization and chronologically within those sub-sections. The second section, documenting various small-scale consulting and commentary, is arranged chronologically.

Access: The following files in this series are restricted:

- B2018-0023/007(03): Restricted for 75 years until 1 January 2063.
- B2018-0023/009(01)-(07): Restricted for 20 years until 1 January 2036.
- B2018-0023/009(08)-(09): Restricted until 1 January 2027.
- B2018-0023/010(02)-(05): Restricted for 20 years until 1 January 2035.
- B2018-0023/010(06)-(08): Restricted for 30 years until 1 January 2044.

Boxes: B2018-0023/006(11)-/011(21)

Series 4: Teaching

Date range: 1953-2008

Extent: 0.65 m of textual records (5 boxes)

Scope and content: Series contains Prof. Safarian's teaching files, primarily from his years at the University of Toronto, but also including some material from his time at the University of Saskatchewan. They include courses taught in economics within the Department of Political Economy as well as later, in the Faculty of Management's Executive MBA program. Records in this series include article annotations and notes, lecture notes, outlines and slides, course syllabi, evaluations and readings lists, final exam questions, correspondence, and handwritten notes.

Notes: See accession B1994-0019 for teaching files from his years at the University of Saskatchewan and the Department of Political Economy at the University of Toronto.

Files in the latter half of the series have been arranged by course, and arranged chronologically within those groupings.

Access: Contact the University Archivist to access the restricted files listed below:

- B2018-0023/012(02)-(04)
- B2018-0023/012(13)

Notes: Drafts of papers that may have been presented at conferences or other venues may also be found in Series 6 (Manuscripts and Publications).

Series 6: Manuscripts and publications

Date range: 1948-2015

Extent: 1.17 m of textual records (9 boxes) and 4 photographs

Scope and content: Series consists of records related to Prof. Safarian's writing and publishing activity. The series begins with material documenting the publishing and copyright of his written work, followed by material related to shorter pieces such as book reviews and letters to the editor. The latter half of the series consists mostly of material used to produce more formal academic articles and monographs, including records on ideas for writing, unpublished writing, and published writing. A notable exception are the files related to The Eagle and the Bear, an unpublished memoir based on Prof. Safarian's travels in Armenia and the former Soviet Union. Records in this series include correspondence, article annotations and notes, paper outlines and drafts, research data, travel journals and paraphernalia, contracts and press photos.

Notes: For a number of the earlier (pre-1990s) publications represented in this series, more material can be found in previous accessions, especially B1994-0019 and B1996-0034. In addition, drafts of papers, speeches and other types of addresses can also be found in Series 5 (Conferences and Addresses).

Arrangement: The series is divided up into five sections and files are arranged chronologically within the first four sections. The last section of published writing is arranged chronologically by date of publication rather than by date of file.

Access: All files are open with the exception of the following file listed below:

- B2018-0023/025(09): Restricted for 30 years until 1 January 2025.

Boxes: B2018-0023/020(08)-/028(08)

Series 7: Research

Date range: 1950-2017

Extent: 1.04 m of textual records (8 boxes)

Scope and content: Series consists of material documenting Prof. Safarian's research activity spanning more than six decades. Material reflects his research approach, the scope of his research interests over time, and the research assistance and partnerships that underlie his prolific research output. Included in this series are grant applications, proposals and reports to various funding bodies including SSHRC and the Donner Foundation, as well as an extensive collection of files containing correspondence, annotated articles, and both handwritten and typed article summaries and notes. Many of the article summaries used by Prof. Safarian in his research and publications were produced by student research assistants, including Walid Hejazi who would later become a colleague and co-author of a number of papers.

Notes: Research files associated with projects in which Prof. Safarian was commissioned by an outside body (the Justice Department, CIAR, etc.) can be found in Series 2 (Employment). Research files associated with a specific publication or writing project can be found in Series 6 (Manuscripts and Publications).

Unless heavily annotated, photocopied articles read and saved by Safarian in the course of his research have either been removed from the files in their entirety or only the title pages have been retained. In many cases, handwritten notes jotting down the author, an abbreviated title and key points were also present with these articles, and these have notes have all been retained.

Arrangement: The series is divided into three sections (administrative, topical, and general research files). Topical research files are arranged loosely by subject matter to preserve the original order in which the material was received. The remaining files (in the administrative and general research files sections) are arranged chronologically, as no original order could be discerned.

Access: All files are open with the exception of the following file listed below:

- B2018-0023/032(10): Restricted. Contact University Archivist.

Boxes: B2018-0023/0029(01) to /036(24)
