Biographical note

John Maurice (J.M.) Beattie (7 March 1932 – 12 July 2017) was a white professor and British legal historian who taught at the University of Toronto's Department of History and served as the former Director of the Centre of Criminology and Sociolegal Studies. Beattie is credited with increasing interest in the field of British legal procedure and criminal history between the seventeenth and the nineteenth centuries, as well as helping to provide a better understanding of the development of early policing within eighteenth-century England.

Born in Newcastle-upon-Tyne, England on 7 March 1932, Beattie completed his early schooling in England. In 1950, he moved to San Francisco to attend the University of San Francisco, where he graduated with a B.S. in History in 1954. He then pursued an M.A. in History at the University of California, Berkeley from 1954 to 1956. In 1957, Beattie returned to England to study at King's College at the University of Cambridge, where he earned his Ph.D. under the supervision of J.H. Plumb in 1963.

In 1961, Beattie accepted a position at the University of Toronto as a Lecturer in the Department of History. In 1972, he became a Professor and later held the position of University Professor from 1988 to 1997. In 1997, he was recognized as Professor Emeritus. During his tenure at the University of Toronto, Beattie was also cross-appointed at the Centre of Criminology from 1972 to 1997, serving as the Centre's Director from 1989 to 1992. He taught various undergraduate and graduate courses based on his research interests. These included England 1485-1785 (HIS 238), England in the Age of Walpole (HIS 435), Crime and Society in England 1500-1800 (HIS 332), Crime and the Administration of Justice in Eighteenth Century London (HIS 411), England, 1689-1789 (HIS 1420), Crime Law and the State in Early Modern England 1650-1850 (CRIM 3150).

Beattie authored four books on English legal and criminal history that gained recognition for their contribution to research in the field. His book Crime and the Courts is regarded as a foundational text in legal and criminal history, earning Beattie prestigious awards such as the Leo Gershoy Prize (1986), the Wallace K. Ferguson Prize (1987), the John Ben Snow Prize (1987), the Louis Gottschalk Prize, and the Francois-Xavier Garneau Prize (1990). In addition to this work, Beattie wrote three more books: The English Court in the Reign of George I (originally a thesis transformed into a book in 1967), Policing and Punishment in London 1660-1750: Urban Crime and the Limits of Terror (2001), and The First English Detectives: The Bow Street Runners and the Policing of London, 1750-1840 (2012). Beattie's academic articles explore similar areas of historical inquiry, focusing on the British legal system, as well as subjects such as Canadian criminal history in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, women in crime, early policing history, and the Australian prison transportation era. Beattie's scholarship was rooted in deep archival research. He employed a quantitative analysis of crime within records at the Public Records Office, painstakingly categorizing those by offence type and number. He did the same with respect to the manner in which these were investigated, prosecuted and sentenced. In that respect, his work was driven by a search for what the records revealed, rather than by any sweeping ideological assessment. That method became a blueprint for subsequent scholars, who would go on to cite his work in theirs.

Beattie's commitment to education and publishing is apparent through his involvement in numerous committees and the editorial roles he took on. He served on education standards committees within and outside the University of Toronto, as well as editorial committees for four different history journals. Given his expertise in British legal and criminal history, Beattie actively discussed and reviewed contemporary research conducted by his colleagues. He also supervised dozens of graduate students throughout his career and was very generous with his time. He maintained a wide network of professional relationships and was always willing to mentor and support others.

Within the University of Toronto, Beattie assumed administrative responsibilities as a member of various standing committees in the Department of History. These included significant roles in committees such as the Department's Appointments, Promotion and Tenure Committee, the Policy Committee, as well as committees for University College and the Centre of Criminology. He also held leadership positions, such as Acting Chair of the Department of History in 1989, Chair of the Humanities Panel of the Connaught Fellowship Committee in 1977 and 1978, and Chair of the Humanities and Social Sciences Committee of the Research Board in 1990 and 1991. Furthermore, Beattie served as the Assistant Dean of the School of Graduate Studies in 1992 and contributed to various search and salary committees at the University of Toronto.

Beattie's contributions to academia were recognized through the awarding of research grants, scholarships, and prizes. He was named a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society in 1973 and a Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada in 1988. In 1979, he was awarded a Killam Research Fellowship. Beattie actively participated in conferences and academic societies, playing significant roles in events such as the North American Conference on British Studies, where he served as both a speaker and a member of fundraising and planning committees. He also engaged with the Canadian Historical Association, serving as a speaker and member of the Council, as well as the American Society for Legal History.

In his personal life, Beattie was married to Susan Beattie (née Mills) and they raised three children: Roger, Allison, and Katherine. Beattie's pursuit of archival and historical research took him away from his family at times and resulted in extensive travel between England and Canada. On occasion, he would relocate his family: to Surrey in 1967-1968 and Cambridge in 1981, during his sabbatical terms. Throughout his life, Beattie actively participated in his community, both in Cambridge and within his neighborhood in Toronto. He passed away on July 12, 2017.

Series 1: Personal and biographical

1957-2016

0.02 m of textual records

12 digital files (402 MB)

This series consists of personal and biographical items from J. M. Beattie, in particular, Beattie's personal letters to his wife Susan, from 1957-1986. Some of the letters are addressed "Dear Susan and R.A.K.," an acronym representing their children, Roger, Allison, and Katherine. The letters primarily cover topics related to family life, such as living arrangements, their children's education, and updates about other family members and friends, as well as his students and research endeavours.

Digital files include a typescript of his father's diary from the First World War, speeches from family gatherings, and a copy of a memorial website made by his family following his death. Also included are a digital video of his speech at his son Roger's wedding (2015) and 2 audio sound recordings: a discussion about his early life with granddaughter Natalie (2016) and a discussion with daughter Allison Beattie about the evolution of universities (2016).

Series 2: PhD Thesis

1952-1968

0.4 m of textual records

This series includes research notes, drafts, and correspondence related to his PhD thesis, "The English Court in the Reign of George I" (University of Cambridge, 1963). The thesis would later be published as a book in 1967, and included in this series is correspondence with Cambridge University Press, along with Beattie and his editor's annotations for each chapter. To conduct his research, Beattie relied on archival materials from multiple repositories and libraries in England and across Europe. This work is referenced in correspondence between 1957 and 1967 from both Series 1 and 3.

Access: Open

Boxes: B2022-0017/001(03)-(29)

For further details, see file listing in Appendix.

Series 3: Correspondence and Letters of Recommendation

1959-2017

1.4 m of textual records

378 digital files (433 MB)

This series consists of five categories of correspondence:

1. Chronological correspondence: correspondence re-arranged chronologically by Beattie prior to donation to the Archives. Includes letters from colleagues, students, publishers, family, friends, and professional contacts. The letters cover both personal and professional topics related to teaching (especially course materials and progression), conferences (invitations to participate and inquiries about subjects/colleagues), travels (particularly in England/Europe), research (archival information requests and the use of Beattie's books in classrooms), research leave (specifically in 1985-1986 while away from his family in London), and personal family life.

2. Professional correspondence files [not re-arranged chronologically]:
correspondence files organized by book project or correspondent, including Tina Loo, Joanna Innes, Jim Phillips, Peter Linebaugh, Nick Rogers, and John Styles. The correspondence primarily covers legal and crime history, focusing on the research conducted by Beattie and his correspondents.
3. 132 digital word processing files of outgoing letters, from 2000-2016
4. 1610 emails, circa 2009-2017, from his j.beattie@sympatico.ca email address, which he shared with his wife Susan. Includes correspondence with his family, friends, and colleagues including Allyson May, Jim Phillips, Martin Friedland, Randall McGowen, Simon Devereau, and Joanna Innes.
5. 4 files and 1 digital folder of letters of recommendation written by Beattie for colleagues and students.

Note: Additional email files from Outlook Express ca. 2008 were included with this accession, but as of 2023-12-06, remain unprocessed as they were unable to be imported into the ePADD email archiving tool.

Related records: Letters to his wife Susan can be found in Series 1.

Access: All files are open, with the exception of:

- B2022-0017/005(15)-(18): Letters of Recommendation, 1970-2001
- B2022-0017_df006: Recs [letters of recommendation], 1992-2016

These files are closed for 30 years until 2053-01-01. Please contact the University Archivist for additional information.

Boxes: B2022-0017/002 – /005(17)

Digital folders: B2022-0017_df004 – df006

For further details, see file listing in Appendix.

A spreadsheet inventory of all digital files is available upon request.

Series 4: Teaching

1960-2013

0.6 m of textual records

This series consists of materials related to courses Beattie taught and includes lecture notes, syllabi, exam questions, and research on course subjects. The most prominent courses featured are HIS 238 (England 1485-1785), HIS 435 (England in the Age of Walpole), and HIS 411 (Crime and the Administration of Justice in Eighteenth Century London). Beattie's other undergraduate course, HIS 332 (Crime and Society in England 1500-1800), and his graduate courses, particularly CRIM 3150 (Crime Law and the State in Early Modern England 1650-1850), are also covered.

Access: Open

Boxes: B2022-0017/005(19) - /006(24)

For further details, see file listing in Appendix.

Series 5: Presentations and talks

1972-2009

0.6 m of textual records

114 digital files (4 GB)

1 audio cassette

This series documents Beattie's conference presentations and public lectures. It covers a range of topics, including his books, Crime and the Courts, Policing and Punishment in London 1660-1750, and Bow Street Runners. His talks also delve into various research interests more generally, such as women and crime, early policing history, urban crime, the development of prisons (with a focus on the Kingston Penitentiary), the history of penal transportation, and the relationship between crime, economics, and society. There is a folder of digital word processing files of Beattie's talks from 1999-2013. Also included is a video of Beattie delivering the 2006 Lansdowne Lecture at the University of Victoria and three audio cassette tape recordings of lectures delivered by Beattie, ca. 1992-1993.

Access: Open

Boxes: B2022-0017/007 - /008(42)

Digital folder: B2022-0017_df007

Digital video: B2022-0017_002M

Sound recordings: B2022-0017/003S

For further details, see file listing in Appendix.

A spreadsheet inventory of all digital files is available upon request.

Series 6: Publishing

1979-2015

0.4 m of textual records

1108 digital files (95 MB)

This series contains records related to Beattie's published books and articles. It includes drafts, publisher contracts, reviews from readers and colleagues, royalty and financial information, as well as correspondence with his publishers.

Digital files consist of word processing drafts for Beattie's articles, 1990-2015, as well as drafts for his last two books, Policing and Punishment in London 1660-1750: Urban Crime and the Limits of Terror (2001) and The First English Detectives: The Bow Street Runners and the Policing of London, 1750-1840 (2012).

Access: Open

Boxes: B2022-0017/008(43) - /009(33)

Digital folders: B2022-0017_df008 – df010

For further details, see file listing in Appendix.

A spreadsheet inventory of all digital files is available upon request.

Series 7: Grants and Research

1963-2015

0.5 m of textual records

207 digital files (12 MB)

This series contains files about the research grants that supported Beattie's travels to English and European archives, along with files pertaining to his research for his published works as well as public lectures and courses. A significant amount of the files are about the Old Bailey Proceedings, which was an instrumental source for both Crimes and the Courts and The First English Detectives.

Digital files consist of further research notes, primarily word processing files and notes about topics pertaining to his research.

Arrangement: The series begins with grants files and then is followed by research files, both arranged chronologically.

Access: Open

Boxes: B2022-0017/009(34) – /010(49)

Digital folders: B2022-0017_df011 – df012

For further details, see file listing in Appendix.

A spreadsheet inventory of all digital files is available upon request.

Series 8: University of Toronto and professional activities

1970-2017

0.10 m of textual records
