Biographical note

Professor Maureen FitzGerald is an educator, writer, and oral historian who taught from 1977-2009 in the Transitional Year Programme at the University of Toronto, and who helped found the Sexual Diversity Studies Program, serving as its second Director, from 2000-2006.

Born in Toronto, she received her BA from the University of Toronto in 1964 and from Northwestern University a PhD (Anthropology) in 1977 with a thesis titled "The Structure and Content of Friendship: An Analysis of Friendships of Urban Cameroonians". She began teaching anthropology at the U of T in 1972 and joined the Transitional Year Program (TYP) as a Senior Lecturer in 1977. In addition to her role in the TYP, as an alumna of the University of Toronto she helped form, activate and maintain the Rainbow Triangle Alumni Association from 1995–2000.

From 1985-1990, she worked part-time as the Managing Editor of the Women's Press. In addition, she was a member of the Lesbians Making History Collective, a small organization of women, based in Toronto, who collected in the mid-1980s the oral histories of older lesbian women about their experiences as 'out' lesbians in the 1950s, 60s, and 70s.

More recent activities include co-curating with Don McLeod and Scott Rayter the exhibit Queer CanLit at the Thomas Fisher Rare Book Library (2008), co-editing with Scott Rayter Queerly Canadian: An Introductory Reader in Sexuality Studies (Canadian Scholars Press, 2012) and co-editing the book Any Other Way: How Toronto Got Queer (Coach House Books, 2017) with Stephanie Chambers, Jane Farrow, Ed Jackson, John Lorinc, Tim McCaskell, Rebecka Sheffield, Tatum Taylor, and Rahim Thawer.

FitzGerald lives in Toronto with her partner Amy Gottlieb.

The ways in which the creators of archival records identify themselves and are identified by others is a key contextual aspect of understanding their perspectives and approach. Maureen FitzGerald is socially understood as a white lesbian woman. This information is based on an assessment of the archival records made by the processing archivist.

Series 3: Research and Writing

1968-2016

0.39 m of textual records

6 digital files (546 KB)

1 audio cassette tape

This series documents FitzGerald's academic research and writing, primarily on topics of lesbian and women's history, and contain drafts of articles and talks, and documentation about conferences, lectures, and events she attended.

Also included are several files related to a study of mature women students at the University of Toronto, ca. 1984-1994. Though there was never any final output, the questionnaires and interviews offer a glimpse into this segment of the U of T student population from this time period.

In addition, there are 3 files related to FitzGerald's work as a research assistant to Dr. Norman Bell at the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry in the summer of 1968, on a project titled "Adolescent Drug Users in Timmins, Ontario".

Access: All files are open, with the exception of:

Series 4: Oral History Interviews

1988-2016

0.26 m of textual records

109 digital files (22 MB)

1 audio cassette tape

This series documents FitzGerald's oral history activities and includes several transcripts of interviews she conducted, primarily with lesbian women and gay men about their lives in Toronto in the 1950s, 60s, and 70s. Included are her working copies of interviews with lesbian women conducted as a member of the Lesbians Making History (LMH) Collective. Though the interviews took place in 1985-1987 and 2000, these transcripts were generated in the 2010's as part of the LGBTQ Digital Oral History Collaboratory project.

This series also includes interviews with two members of the University Women's Club, Dorothy Thompson and Eva Macdonald, on the occasion of the Club's 90th anniversary in 1993; and a sound recording and transcript of an oral history interview with Lee Maracle from April 1999, on the topic of publishing in Canada, privilege, and funding and grants.

Access: All files are open, with the exception of:

- B2021-0006/017(06)-(10), /002S
- B2023-0022_df008

These files and sound recording are restricted for 20 years until 2042-01-01. There are no consent forms with the interviewees about the donation of these interviews to UTARMS. UTARMS has decided to make them available for research 20 years from the date of donation. Contact the University Archivist if you have concerns or questions about the inclusion of an interview within our holdings, or if you would like to make an access request.

Publication Note: Researchers quoting from the Lesbians Making History Dorothy Knight interviews must use pseudonyms provided in the final version of the transcript, file B2021-0006/017(02), rather than the names provided in the working copies of the transcripts.

Related material: Original audio tapes and final edited transcripts of the Lesbians Making History interviews have been deposited with the ArQuives. A digital exhibit was made by Dr. Cait McKinney in 2016.

Series 5: Non-Academic Publishing and Exhibits

1980-2017

0.46 m of textual records

156 digital files (45 MB)

1 photograph

In addition to her work at the U of T, FitzGerald was actively involved in small press publishing and writing. Included in this series are files about her children's book (co-authored with Linda Briskin), The Day the Fairies Went on Strike (Press Gang Publishers, 1982); files from her time as Managing Editor of the Women's Press (1985-1990) and as co-owner with Lillian Allen of Well Versed Publishing; and files of correspondence and other writing (book reviews, articles, book blurbs).

There are also files related to the curation of a Queer U of T display at Robarts Library in 2004, and the exhibit Queer CanLit at the Thomas Fisher Rare Book Library in 2008. Finally, there are drafts of chapters for the book Any Other Way: How Toronto Got Queer (Coach House Books, 2017), which she co-edited with Stephanie Chambers, Jane Farrow, Ed Jackson, John Lorinc, Tim McCaskell, Rebecka Sheffield, Tatum Taylor, and Rahim Thawer.

Note: FitzGerald donated records relating to the Women's Press to the Archives and Special Collections, University of Ottawa and these can be found in Series 9 of The Women's Press fonds. The Women's Press records in this series are files from her office at University College, which weren't included in the 2017 donation to the University of Ottawa.
