Scope and Content

Textual, graphic, cartographic, architectural, publications, works of art, sound recordings, moving images, artifacts, 1915-1994, 40.24 metres Access: Open

When Dr. Solandt started donating his personal records to the University of Toronto Archives in 1988, beginning with his certificates and diplomas, the richness, diversity, and volume of the material still to come was only hinted at. Over the next five years further donations were made, punctuated by telephone conversations about the need for still more boxes and folders and archival methods of arrangement and description. Dr. Solandt was very interested in our professional approach to managing his records and was determined (as always, I was to discover) to do things in the proper manner. Twenty years after his death his widow, Vaire, donated the last of his personal records; they had been partially arranged by Dr. Solandt and stored above the garage at the Wolfe Den.

Dr. Solandt's running commentary on his past life, as the boxes piled up for transfer to the Archives, proved of considerable assistance. I faced a huge volume of records documenting wide-ranging, complex, and often inter-related events, which he had divided into categories roughly equivalent to his numerous activities. These were to form the basis of most of the forty-six series in this inventory. In addition, beginning several years before, he had undertaken to do what few individuals have ever had the time or the inclination to attempt – an overview of each principal activity. There are more than twenty of these, totalling several hundred pages. Each demonstrates the clarity of thought and an understanding of the essentials of any problem facing him that characterized his work and enabled him often to juggle several divergent projects at once. They proved invaluable as I sought to make sense of the mountain of material in front of me, and should be equally useful to researchers.

The records, dating from 1915 to 1994, encompass most of the media one might expect to find in an archives, the bulk being textual records, graphic material (primarily photographs and slides), maps and plans, and publications. The material pertaining to his personal life consists primarily of biographical files (including press coverage), correspondence and diaries, files on his travels and, especially, on his canoe trips as part of the "Voyageurs" group.

Most of the records, not surprisingly, document his extraordinarily active and productive professional life, from the beginning of World War II to the end of the 1980s. The earlier portions of his career, especially his years with the Defence Research Board, Canadian National Railways, de Havilland, and the Electric Reduction Company are not well represented here as the records are largely found elsewhere. The volume of records begin to pick up in the mid-1960s and the greatest strength is to be found in those generated from the early 1970s on, when Dr. Solandt's activities became complex indeed, with directorships in many companies, many consultancies, trusteeships and advisory committees. Three activities which seemed to please him most were ...the Scientific Advisory Committee to the Legislative Assembly of the Northwest Territories [1976-1982]..consultancies for international agricultural and medical research [1975-1988]...and Senior Consultant to the Institute for Environmental Studies at the University of Toronto, enabling him to retain a close association with the University.<sup>1</sup>

This finding aid for this fonds is arranged by series, with the accessions clearly designated. In the series that are grouped by activity, the arrangement, once career changes are identified, is largely chronological. The principal concentration of activity in any project is the determining factor in the order. Organizations that predominate in one series may be represented in another, particularly those dealing with international agricultural and medical research, such as the umbrella Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research. Most accessions have more than one series.

Dr. Solandt's abiding interest in scientific research and development is a recurring theme throughout and was instrumental, for instance, to his agreeing to chair the newly established Science Council of Canada (1966) and in joining the IMASCO/CDC Research Foundation (1978). Similarly, it was his acknowledged excellence as a manager that, in later years, brought him into contact with the international research agencies that needed professional advice on internal structural problems. On another level, the canoe trips he began at the age of 41 nurtured an interest in wilderness conservation and, subsequently, involvement with the Quetico Foundation and the Wilderness Research Foundation. One factor linking all these activities was Dr. Solandt's inter-disciplinary approach to ideas and problem solving; it is a recurring theme in his correspondence and in his introductions to the series.

Dr. Solandt's personal records, as described in this inventory, are divided into six accessions (B1988-0016, B1989-0043, B1990-0022, B1991-0015, B1992-0011, B1993-0041, and B2012-0014) totalling some 34 metres in extent. Individual finding aids to some of these accessions were initially prepared; they have been superceded by this inventory. Within each series the standard level of description is the file , though Item level description is provided for some photographs, maps and non-textual items.

Biographical chronology

This chronology is based substantially on the one compiled by David Grenville as a part of the preparations by the Organizing Committee for the Solandt Symposium on Organizing and Managing the Practical Application of Science to Problems in War and Peace (Queen's University at Kingston, Ontario, 8-10 May, 1994). He consulted closely with Dr. Solandt while preparing it, and I have made some additions to cover the period up to the beginning of Dr. Solandt's active career with additional details and modifications as deemed necessary. The proceeding of the Symposium, were published as Perspectives in Science and Technology: the legacy of Omond Solandt. Ed. C.E. Law, G.R. Lindsey and D.M. Grenville. Kingston, Ont.: Queen's Quarterly, 1994. This volume, and Dr. Solandt's personal papers generally, have also proved very useful in providing information for the series descriptions which follow the chronology.

Series 1: Biographical and personal files

Textual, graphic, publications, artifacts, 1915-1994, 1.86 metres

This series is divided into two sections. The first contains biographical sketches and curriculum vitae, press clippings and articles about Dr. Solandt, along with photocopies of his birth certificate and copies of his will and that of his first wife, Elizabeth. There is correspondence with Elizabeth regarding their marriage, with relatives and friends, and relating to appointments. Also present is a cash book detailing personal expenses between 1923 and 1946, a diary of Dr. Solandt's first trip to Europe in 1929.

The first portion of this series concludes with the programme for the Solandt Symposium on Organizing and Managing the Practical Application of Science to Problems in Peace and War (Queen's University at Kingston, 1994), programs for dinners of the Royal Canadian Engineers 3rd Field Engineer Regiment and the Royal Canadian Signals 11th Signal Regiment, a presentation copy of Donald Y. Solandt's Highways to Health, and a resolution by Donald M. Solandt (Omond and Donald's father) to the Presbyterian Synod of Manitoba in 1915.

The second section of this series consists of diaries and daybooks (largely the latter), beginning with an account of Dr. Solandt's trip to Europe in the summer of 1929 while he was an undergraduate at the University of Toronto. Dr. Solandt kept only the occasional diary, of which three are represented in this series. The first is for May, 1945 as the war ended in Europe. The last two both cover his trip to Japan in October-December, 1945 to study the effects of the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki. These diaries are followed by "CDRB's U.K. Visit" (undated); an account book of Solandt's visit to the United Kingdom in November,

University of Toronto Archives and Record Management Services
Omond McKillop Solandt fonds

1966, and his American address book.

The remainder of the volumes in this series are daybooks and "pocket diaries", of which Dr. Solandt created a large number. In the former, usually with the manufacturer's label of as "diary" or "date book", he recorded his appointments and, occasionally, his expenses and other related notations. These date from 1941, when he first went to Lulworth, to 1988. The volumes for 1945, 1947, 1948, 1957, 1958, 1979, and 1986 are absent, either because they were never kept or, perhaps, were not written up in the same manner. For 1945, for instance, there are entries for January, June, and July in two different volumes, but none for the whole year. For two years (1956; 1971, where the second volume has "Mayo Muir" below Dr. Solandt's name and the entries are not in his hand) there are two volumes.

The "pocket diaries" complement the appointment books. The earliest year represented is 1945, the latest, 1988. There are no volumes for 1948-1951, 1953, 1957, and 1959-1965. For 1958, there are also two volumes containing notes on Dr. Solandt's European trip in March and appointments for another in July, and "at a glance" volumes both for 1958 and 1959.

The arrangement of volumes is chronological, so far as it was possible to arrange them.

For accounts of travel experiences, either for pleasure or work, see Series 11: Canoe trips and 13: Travel.

For a detailed listing of this series, see Appendix 1.

Series 2: Correspondence

Textual, graphic, publications, 1939-1992, 0.50 metres

Except for one file of correspondence from 1989, covering correspondents filed by surname, I through P and filed in accession B1993-0041, all the correspondence in this series is from accession B1994-0020.

This series has large gaps, particularly for the fifteen years following the Second World War and the 1970s. It begins with Dr. Solandt's wartime letters to his family during the Second World War, where letters from March 1943 to October 1944 are absent, followed by a few letters from 1947, 1954, and 1956. The remainder of the correspondence was arranged by Dr. Solandt in several systems. The first covers the years 1963-1986, the arrangement being alphabetical. A few of the files deal with particular organizations: the Commission on Canadian Studies (1974-1976), the National Radiological Protection Board in the United Kingdom (1976-1981), the Vanier Medal Selection Committee (1975) and York University (1976).

The second system, described as "miscellaneous" correspondence, is filed chronologically between 1955 and 1965. The file for 1955-1962 contains relatively few letters and the file for 1965 is his "personal" correspondence file while employed at Hawker-Siddeley. These are followed by five files for 1970 (arranged alphabetically, A-S), and one for each year from 1980 to 1992 inclusive. There is a 1989 file on unidentified flying objects (UFOs), about which there are in earlier files some letters from the same correspondents.

A photoprint has been removed from box B1994-0020/025(04) to B94-0020/001P.

Series 3: Education

Textual, graphic, publications, artifacts, 1915-1939, 2.53 metres

Omond Solandt attended Mulvey School in Winnipeg from 1915 to November 1920, when his family moved to Toronto. He then attended Rosedale Junior Public School, transferring to Central Technical School in 1922. For his last year of high school he attended Jarvis Collegiate.

He enrolled at the University of Toronto in 1927, as an undergraduate at Victoria College. He graduated with a BA in 1931 with first class honours in biological and medical sciences. Omond's University of Toronto awards included the Edward Blake Scholarship Matriculation Scholarship (1927), the Edward Blake Scholarship (1929), the Daniel Wilson Scholarship (1930), the Moses Henry Aikins Scholarship, and the Carter Scholarship. In 1931 he received the British Association for the Advancement of Sciences Bronze Medal and the G. A. Cox Gold Medal in Science .

During the summers of 1927 and 1928, Omond found employment as a radio operator with the Ontario Forestry Branch (he had earned his certificate in radiotelegraphy in 1927). During the summer of 1930 he was an observer with the Ontario Provincial Air Service. Dr. Solandt took many carefully described photographs of his work, which included the aircraft used: HS-2L Flying Boats (H-Boats), the versatile de Havilland Moth that became the backbone of the forest fire detection fleet, the amphibious Vickers Vedette, Hamilton mono seaplanes, and Fairchild 71 cabin monoplanes with folding wings. In the early 1930s, The Ontario Provincial Air Service added four Buhl CA-6 Air Sedans that it built.

In 1931, Dr. Solandt began graduate work, earning his Master of Arts in 1932. He then entered Medicine, studying physiology under Professor Charles H. Best in his first year. This led to his second overseas trip when, in 1935, he and several other members of the Physiology Department attended the 14th Congress of the International Physiological Society in Leningrad and Moscow. While there, he collected a large quantity of memorabilia and publications, most of which have survived. Dr. Solandt was awarded the John McCrae Memorial Scholarship in 1934 and again in 1936. In June 1936 he graduated from medicine with honours, sweeping all the awards offered in his year.

Dr. Solandt's certificates and diplomas are located in Appendix 4: Diplomas and certificates.

Series 5: University of Cambridge and World War II

Textual, graphic, architectural drawings, publications, 1936-1945, 0.65 metres

Following graduation in medicine from the University of Toronto, Dr. Solandt decided to embark on a career of clinical research in cardiology, using the Ellen Mickle Scholarship. He spent three academic terms in 1936-1937 at the University of Cambridge under the tutelage of Dr. Alan N. Drury, a distinguished researcher in the field of experimental pathology and one of Britain's few specialists in the study of morbid physiology. He then returned to Toronto to intern at the Toronto General Hospital.

In 1938 Dr. Solandt went back to England to prepare for the examinations for membership in the Royal College of Physicians. He returned to Cambridge where, at the end of November, he applied for the Lucas Walker Studentship so he could work again under Professor Drury, this time on aspects of the general problem of cardiac hypertrophy. On 5 January 1939 he was admitted as a candidate for the PhD degree, to which was applied his academic work from his master's programme of 1936-1937. He had just started when an faculty position opened and, on 17 March, he was appointed lecturer in mammalian physiology. He continued in this position until 15 May 1940.

The next day Dr. Solandt was appointed Director of the South West London Blood Supply Depot, one of four established by the Medical Research Council in the London District. There he "revelled in his navigational and organizational skills ... being the only doctor at the Depot not to crash his car in the course of duty." Based in Sutton, the work of the Depot covered South-West London and the whole of Surrey; it soon had over 50,000 donors. Dr. Solandt oversaw the development of collection kits, the collection of blood and the production of plasma, and he and his staff investigated and published papers on the many problems relating to blood and blood transfusion, including finding an artificial substitute for blood used in transfusions. By year's end, the initial crisis of providing adequate supplies of blood to the war effort had abated and the Medical Research Council had other plans for him.

In March 1941, Dr. Solandt was appointed director of the Medical Research Council Physiological Laboratory at Lulworth, Dorset. Gunners and other crew members of British tanks were becoming unconscious during gunnery practice, so Dr. Solandt planned and directed urgent work that led to improved ventilating systems in British tanks, that included studying the details of fan design and specifications. He also directed research on engineering problems associated with tank turret traverse mechanism.

Other British scientists were testing and improving the effectiveness of ant-aircraft gunnery through the use of radar. The decision to expand and coordinate such techniques across the British Army led, in 1942, to the establishment of the Army Operational Research Group (AORG) which reported to the War Office and the Ministry of Supply. Dr. Solandt was recruited as Director of the Armoured Fighting Vehicle and Artillery Section.

University of Toronto Archives and Record Management Services
Omond McKillop Solandt fonds

He became Assistant Superintendent of AORG the following year and in June 1944 was promoted to Superintendent. He led a group of 125 scientists who did research on the operational performance of weapons for all branches of the British Army. He directed research on tank and field artillery, addressing problems that ranged from the engineering aspects of tank fire control systems to tank armour, tracks and suspension. The group also tackled engineering problems in anti-aircraft, radar, and fire control, and planned and conducted trials on the lethality and destructiveness of weapons and their effectiveness against buildings, vehicles and aircraft.

This work led to Dr. Solandt being sent late in 1945 to Japan as a British War Office representative to study the destructive effects of the atomic bomb (for this, see Series 6).

Series 6: Atomic bomb

Textual, graphic, publications, cartographic, 1944-1980, 1.36 metres

In September, 1945 the British Chiefs of Staff were invited by their American counterparts to send a mission to Japan to study the effects of the atomic bomb. Omond Solandt was loaned to the Scientific Advisor to the Army Council in the War Office to go as his representative. He went as a specialist in damage to military installations but, there being none of significance in Hiroshima or Nagasaki, spent most of his time studying the casualties from a medical perspective.

This series includes Dr. Solandt's narrative of his visit, correspondence, diaries, addresses, drafts of reports, reports of casualties and damage, photoprints, lantern slides and maps.

Series 7: Addresses

Textual, publications, 1934-1986, 0.30 m

Dr. Solandt delivered many speeches and formal addresses during his career. This series contains notes for and drafts of them and, occasionally, photographs. Some of his addresses were published, especially those delivered at conferences or as memorial lectures; if so, they may appear in the series 'Manuscripts and publications'. The arrangement is chronological.

Series 9: Activities files

Textual, graphic, publications, 1948-1992, 0.98 metres

These "activity files" (so named by Dr. Solandt) range from the clubs to which he belonged, to professional associations, and to organizations that had scientific and/or social implications in which he was particularly interested, such as the Canadian Nuclear Association. Their scope moves from local to international and several levels in between.

The files contain a corresponding variety of material, ranging from correspondence, manuscripts, and notes, to memoranda, programs, pamphlets, reports. Their arrangement is alphabetical by name of event, individual or organization. Included are files on the Conference of Experts to Study the Methods of Detecting Violations of a Possible Agreement on the Suspension of Nuclear Weapons Tests (1958), for which Dr. Solandt was a member of the Western delegation.

For a detailed listing of this series, see Appendix 9.

Series 10: Associations and committees

Textual, graphic, publications, 1949-1992, 0.45 metres

An active joiner and participant, Dr. Solandt belonged to many associations and sat on many committees. Those documented here are those he was most interested in and his involvement often lasted many years. The title for this series is Dr. Solandt's; included in it is correspondence, addresses, memoranda, notes, reports, articles, and the occasional brochure and newsletter.

For a detailed listing of this series, see Appendix 10.

Series 11: Consultant's files

Textual, graphic, publications, artifacts, 1949-1990, 3.0 metres

Dr. Solandt's expertise was sought by many agencies of Canadian and other governments and by the private sector. Or, if he discovered an organization that particularly interested him, he might offer his services. The files in this series relate to organizations of which Dr. Solandt was either a director or for which he was paid a consultant's fee. He also served in these capacities for organizations represented in other series in this inventory. Included are correspondence, addresses, notes, memoranda, drafts of papers, reports, and photoprints. Arrangement is alphabetically by name of organization. The principal ones in this series are the Atlantic Development Corporation, the Polar Continental Shelf Project, the Canadian Institute for Radiation Safety, Huyck Corporation, the International Development Research Centre, the Ludwig Institute for Cancer Research, the Toronto District Heating Study, and the Urban Transportation Development Corporation.

Series 12: Canoe trips

Textual, graphic, cartographic, publications, artifacts, 1952-1990, 1.23 metres

Dr. Solandt was introduced to canoes at an early age but did not take up the sport seriously until he was 41. The group that assembled for the first canoe trip into Quetico Park in 1952 formed the core of what subsequently became the “Voyageurs”, who caught national attention in 1955 when they retraced the fur trade route down the Churchill River. Their last long trip was in 1964 down the Hayes River from Norway House to York Factory, though there were several shorter ones later. Solandt’s own last lengthy trip was in Quetico in 1978. These trips were complemented by a number of family canoeing excursions, beginning with Quetico in 1956 and ending in 1990.

The correspondence, diaries, notes, press coverage, photoprints and slides, maps, and pamphlets in this series document Dr. Solandt’s “Voyageur” and other canoe trips. Included are extensive correspondence files with some of the “Voyageurs”, including Tony Lovink, the Netherlands ambassador to Canada, and Eric Morse, the canoeist, and with two Americans, the noted conservationist Brookes Hubachek, and the famous naturalist and canoeist, Sigurd Olson. Solandt’s extensive introductory notes place the whole in perspective.

For a detailed listing of the contents of this series, see Appendix 12.

Series 13: Travel files

Textual, graphic, cartographic, publications, 1959-1984, 0.46 metres

Omond Solandt traveled frequently and widely in pursuit of his professional and personal interests. On a single trip he might act in several capacities. The principal trips are several visits to northern Canada, to Russia (1964 and 1971), and to New Zealand and Antarctica (1966).

This series contains itineraries, correspondence, notes, programs, addresses, diaries, pamphlets, press coverage, publications, photoprints and maps. The files are usually arranged by destination and year rather than the organization(s) on behalf of which he was undertaking a trip.

For a detailed listing of the contents of this series, see Appendix 13.

Series 14: Operational research

Textual, graphic, publications, 1933-1989, 0.30 metres

Dr. Solandt was one of the pioneers in operational research, a new sphere of scientific activity which arose from the particular wartime requirements for solutions to complex questions, some highly technical, and most involving the interaction between men and machines. By 1944 Solandt had become head of the British Army's Operational Research Group and the following year was appointed scientific adviser to Mountbatten, then Supreme Commander, Southeast Asia. In 1947 he was appointed the founding chair of the Defence Research Board of Canada.

This series reflects his involvement with and continuing interest in operational research over several decades. It includes correspondence, memoranda, notes, drafts of reports, reports, other publications, addresses, and minutes.

For a detailed listing of the contents of this series, see Appendix 14.

Series 15: Defence Research Board of Canada

Textual, graphic, publications sound recordings, artifacts, 1946-1988, 3.0 metres

In 1946 Dr. Solandt was called back to Ottawa where he was appointed as Director-General of Defence Research. The following year he was invited to become the founding chair of the Defence Research Board of Canada which was responsible for co-ordinating and directing defence science and research and development for the three armed services.

While most of the records generated by the Defence Research Board are in Ottawa, the correspondence, addresses, press clippings, articles, pamphlets, reports and photoprints (see Series 44) in this series provide a succinct overview of Solandt's contribution to the development of science policy in Canada during the crucial decade following the end of the Second World War.

Textual, graphic, publications, 1966-1992, 0.80 metres

Prime Minister Pearson invited Omond Solandt to become the founding chair of the Science Council of Canada in 1966. He held the position until 1972 and remained actively interested in the affairs of the Council until it was disbanded. This is reflected in the correspondence, a collection of the addresses Dr. Solandt gave, minutes, memoranda, reports and photoprints contained in this series.

Included are files on the Gandhi Centenary Conference on Science, Education, and Non-violence, held in Ahmedabad, Gujarat, India in 1969, and, for the post-1972 years, files on the Science Council's Committee on Population and Technology.

Textual, graphic, publications, sound recordings, 1963-1971, 0.30 metres

Twenty-nine years after Omond Solandt left the University of Toronto with a gold medal in medicine, he returned as Chancellor, taking up his three-year appointment on 1 July, 1965. It was renewed for a further three years in 1968.

The contents of this series includes correspondence, addresses, minutes, programs, reports and photoprints relating to his ceremonial duties and other activities associated with the office. Included are files on awarding of honorary degrees, the Presidential Search Committee, chaired by Dr. Solandt, for the successor to Claude Bissell, and the new (1971) University of Toronto Act. Included is an audiotape of the proceedings of his installation as chancellor.

Textual, graphic, publications, cartographic, 1954-1992, 0.60 m

Omond Solandt's first exposure to Quetico Provincial Park was as a member of the first Voyageurs canoe trip in 1952. In the early 1960s he joined the Board of the Quetico Foundation. It had been founded in 1954 to promote the educational and scientific conservation efforts of the Quetico Superior Committee which had emerged from the activities of the Quetico-Superior movement over the previous forty years. He did not play a very active role in the Foundation until the late 1970s when an internal crisis arose. His energies were then directed to getting new blood on the Board and new ideas in place for the future, including the participation of the Lac Lacroyx First Nation that had originally occupied the area.

Textual, publications, 1972-1977, 0.33 m

The controversy caused by the proposed construction of major power lines through populated southern Ontario resulted in Omond Solandt being appointed in 1972 to head a commission of public inquiry into the transmission of power from Nanticoke to Pickering. The following year the inquiry was extended to include an examination of the proposed route between Lennox and Oshawa. Dr. Solandt held public hearings in the affected municipalities between May, 1974 and January, 1975.

Present are correspondence, press coverage, drafts of papers, and reports relating to the inquiry and to the Ontario Royal Commission on Electric Power.

Textual, graphic, publications, 1971-1991, 0.39 metres

The Institute de la Vie, based in Paris and Geneva, was founded in 1960 by Maurice Marois to safeguard, through science and technology, the “harmonious development of all life”. In 1972 Solandt was invited to sit on the newly formed selection committee for the Institut de la Vie prize (Electricite de France Foundation), awarded every two years to an organization or individual that best met the aims of the Institut, a position he held until 1984. He also chaired the Canadian Committee of the Institut and latterly was President of its World Board of Governors. He retired from all official positions with the Institut in 1988.

This series contains the proceedings of the Institut’s Conseil de Direction (1976-1988), correspondence, notes, minutes, reports, and programmes, particularly of the Institut’s conference mondiale and of the selection committee of the international jury for the EDF prize, and photoprints.

IFIAS was founded in Sweden in 1972 and Solandt, who had been involved in some of the early planning, was appointed to a panel of Special Advisors. Although he was never very active, he gave specific advice when asked. One of his principal contributions was to get the University of Toronto involved in IFIAS through the Institute of Environmental Studies, the first university to receive membership in it. Although his term as Special Advisor ended in 1985, he strongly opposed the move of the headquarters of IFIAS to Canada the following year.

While Dr. Solandt did not keep much of the mass of paper IFIAS produced, the correspondence, minutes, briefs, reports, and publications in this series provide a summary of its activities during his association with it.

Textual, publications, 1975-1987, 0.15 m

Beginning in 1975, when he left Mitchell Plummer, Dr. Solandt was offered an office at the Institute for Environmental Studies at the University of Toronto by its director, Ken Hare. Although he had to give up his office at the end of 1977, he remained as a consultant, with special interest in the Arctic Program and in toxicology.

The correspondence, notes, minutes, memoranda and reports in this series provide a good overview of the development of certain policies within the Institute and, in particular, the issues associated with establishing an Environmental Health Secretariat at the University of Toronto.

Textual, graphic, cartographic, publications, artifacts, 1975-1982, 2.20 metres

In July of 1975 Dr. Solandt was hired as a consultant to help in the establishment of ICARDA in the Middle East. He was elected as Vice-Chairman of the Board in January, 1976 and remained a member of it until 1981. During this time he carried out numerous duties. As Senior Consultant he was the chief executive officer for ongoing activity. A prominent part of his duties was to recommend to the ICARDA subcommittee specific sites for ICARDA research stations in Lebanon, Syria and Iran. Visits were made and reports written though, in the case of Iran, they were not acted upon. In 1977 he advised the selection committee on the choice of a new Director-General for ICARDA.

This series includes correspondence, background files, memoranda, minutes, reports, site selection reports, maps, press coverage, pamphlets, publications, and a plaque that document in detail Dr. Solandt's activities.

Series 30: Centro Internacional de Majorimiente de Maiz y Trigo/ International Maize and Wheat Improvement Centre (CIMMYT)

Textual, graphic, publications, 1976-1992, 2.60 metres

Dr. Solandt was appointed to the Board of CIMMYT in 1976 and remained for ten years, until April, 1986. One his last official acts was to participate in the selection of a new Director-General. He also sat on the Board of another of the CGIAR centres, ICARDA, and two that were similar but not part of CGIAR, the International Centre for Insect Physiology and Ecology in Nairobi and the International Centre for Diarrhoeal Diseases Research in Dhaka, Bangladesh. His experience in CIMMYT was central to all this involvement. After he retired from the Board, he conducted, in April, 1988, a brief management review of the organization as a prelude to a more extensive review by CGIAR later in the year.

This series contains correspondence, agenda books for Board meetings, notes, notices, memoranda, drafts of reports and reviews, other reports and publications, programs and photoprints that provide detailed coverage of the functions of the organization and Solandt's role in it.

For a detailed listing of this series, see Appendix 30.

Series 31: International Centre for Insect Physiology and Ecology (ICIPE)

Textual, graphic, publications, 1971-1989, 1.18 metres

ICIPE, based in Nairobi, is one of two important international research centres (the other is WARDA) whose origins lie in the native populations of the area in which they operate. Late in 1976, Omond Solandt was asked to join the Board of ICIPE, which was badly in need of help in management. He formally took his seat in June, 1977 and the reorganization that he engineered addressed problems of efficiency, a lingering colonial mentality, and the appointment of a new chair. A financial crisis forced Solandt to assume the duties as chair in April, 1982, a position he retained for a year. He remained actively associated with ICIPE until 1987 and in 1989 was a one of the founders of its Honorary Alumni Association.

The correspondence, minutes, background papers, reports, programs, publications and photoprints and slides provide a thorough documentation of the complex problems that Dr. Solandt faced at ICIPE, the progress that was made in resolving them, and the impact of many individuals involved in it, especially its founder, Dr. Tom Odhiambo.

Textual, graphic, publications, 1978-1988, 0.60 metres

Dr. Solandt was a member of the original Board of ICDDR, which inaugurated the new organization to replace the Cholera Research Centre in 1979, and remained on it until 1982. While there he took considerable interest in the financial management of the Centre, and was also concerned with maintaining its international status.

This series contains detailed correspondence, minutes, memoranda and reports documenting the problems that ICDDR faced and the limited success that was met by Dr. Solandt and others in addressing them. Dr. Solandt's introductory remarks summarize the issues and place the problems in perspective.

When Pierre Gendron took over as Director of PPRIC, he obtained approval from the Board to appoint a small committee to report on specific issues that were raising concerns amongst the members of the Institute. Dr. Solandt chaired the committee, which met during the early months of 1978 and presented a report in May.

Series 34: Canadian Forestry Advisory Council

Textual, publications, 1975-1992; 0.36 metres

While Dr. Solandt was working on his report for the PPRIC, it became apparent that the amount of forestry research being done in Canada was declining every year. Pierre Gendron proposed that the CFAC should commission a quick survey of the volume of forestry research being done in every agency that could be located in Canada. A Steering Committee was created to execute the study, which was carried out by Dr. Solandt in 1979.

The correspondence, notes, minutes, memoranda, reports, drafts of reports, and replies to questionnaires document the procedures and methodology that Dr. Solandt undertook in preparing his report.

Late in 1978 Murray Koffler asked Omond Solandt to serve on the Scientific Advisory Committee for the IMASCO/CDC Research Foundation which he had recently established. Solandt stayed until its last farewell luncheon on 25 November, 1985.

The Committee generated a great volume of paper but Dr. Solandt was very selective in what he retained, keeping only significant correspondence, minutes, and some reports. These records provide a bird's eye view of its operations and his role on it.

Series 36: Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR)

Textual, graphics, publications, 1976-1991, 0.75 metres

The Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research was established in 1971. It is an informal association of some 50 countries, international and regional organizations and private foundations working together in support of agricultural research around the world. Dr. Solandt's first association with CGIAR was through ICARDA (see above, Series 26). In addition to his ten years as a member of the board of CIMMYT, he chaired the Review Committee of CIP in 1983 and of CIAT in 1984. In 1981 he sat as a member of the Committee to Review the CGIAR System, and acted as a consultant for the CGIAR Secretariat in various capacities between 1978 and 1988. During this period he also consulted directly for the centres that came under the CGIAR umbrella: ILCA, IITA, IRRI and ICARDA.

Most of the files relating to Dr. Solandt's involvement with CGIAR are located in this series, although CGIAR material inevitably appears in the series of records of those organizations associated with it. This series, like most others, begins with a lucid and penetrating overview by Dr. Solandt of his involvement with CGIAR. In addition, there is correspondence relating to all the CGIAR systems, minutes of meetings, numerous reports (including those of the Review Committees of 1976, 1977 and 1981) and management reviews throughout the 1980s; correspondence, discussion papers, and reports of the Technical Advisory Committee and the Consultative Group, and a sampling of other CGIAR reports.

For a detailed listing of this series, see Appendix 36.

Series 38: Centro Internacional de la Papa/International Potato Research Centre (CIP)

Textual, graphic, publications, 1981-[199-], 0.13 metres

In December, 1982 Dr. Solandt was retained by the World Bank to direct a management review of Centro Internacional de la Papa, based in Lima, Peru, which was synchronized with the quinquennial program review which would be much more extensive and take a great deal longer. Solandt's study was therefore restricted to the headquarters in Lima, and the report was issued the following year.

This compact series contains Solandt's introductory comments, procedures for the review team, correspondence, memoranda, drafts of the report, photoprints, and CIP reports.

Series 39: Wilderness Research Foundation

Textual, publications, moving images, 1948-1992, 0.20 metres

During the late 1980s the future of the Quetico-Superior Wilderness Research Center at Mukluk Bay, Minnesota was very much in question. The Wilderness Research Foundation, which sponsored it, was assessing its future at a time when its founder was withdrawing from active participation prior to his death in December, 1988. Dr. Solandt was initially a member of the Advisory Committee to the Board of the Foundation and later a member of the Board. He pressed for the continuation of wilderness research at Mukluk Bay and left the Board in 1991 only when he felt that this would be achieved.

The correspondence, minutes, memoranda and reports written by Dr. Solandt and others, along with articles and institutional reports, clearly document the relationship between the Foundation and the Center, the work done by the latter, the problems it faced, and the policies that were developed in an attempt to save it.

Series 40: Canada/Newfoundland Royal Commission on the Ocean Ranger Marine Disaster

Textual, publications, 1982-199-, 1.56 metres

When the Ocean Ranger oil rig tipped over in the Atlantic on 15 April, 1982, it set in motion an inquiry which involved two royal commissions, one federal and the other provincial (Newfoundland) which, due to a public outcry, were forced to amalgamate. David Grenville, secretary of the Commission, drew on advice from Dr. Solandt for the second volume of the report, which addressed safety on the oil rigs. An important part of this exercise was the convening of a conference in St. John's in August, 1984. Entitled "Safety Offshore Eastern Canada," which Solandt chaired, it gathered the expert testimony necessary for the report.

The correspondence, memoranda, notes, reports, minutes, submissions and publications provide a detailed documentation of the events surrounding the disaster, an explanation for it, and recommendations for future action.

The Centro Internacional de Agricultura Tropical was founded by the Rockefeller Institute in 1967 in Cali, Columbia. In 1982 a massive fraud was discovered within the organization, with the result that the World Bank in 1984 retained Omond Solandt to conduct a management review of the Centre.

The files in this series provide a good picture of the conduct of the External Management Review and of its results. Included are the Review Team's programs, notes, and interviews; correspondence, notes, memoranda, minutes, and background papers; summaries and draft reports by Dr. Solandt, CIAT reports, and slides and photoprints.

Early in 1983 Dr. Solandt was asked by the Director-General of ILCA to advise him on management problems at the Centre's headquarters in Addis Ababa. The political situation in Ethiopia had had a considerable impact on the Centre's effectiveness; it also suffered from conflicts amongst the staff.

The reports, correspondence, memoranda, and articles in this series provide an overview of the work of ILCA and a context for the recommendations Dr. Solandt made in his report.

Series 44: Mrs. David Orlikow v. United States Government

Textual, 1951-1988, 0.13 metres

In the early 1950s the Defence Research Board, in response to concerns over presumed Russian brainwashing experiments, provided funds for studies in sensory deprivation at McGill University. At the same time, contrary to an agreement between the Canadian and American governments and unknown to the DRB, the Central Intelligence Agency was funding, through a front organization, experimental depatterning research by Ewen Cameron at the Allan Memorial Institute. The results were so devastating to the patients that nine sued the CIA for damages; one was Mrs. David Orlikow, whose husband had long been an MP from Winnipeg. The case was heard in Washington in 1986, for which Dr. Solandt made a deposition.

This series contains background material, depositions and affidavits relating to the court case, along with correspondence, copies of court proceedings and plaintiffs' memoranda.

Series 45: West African Rice Development Association (WARDA)

Textual, graphic, publications, 1983-1990, 0.32 metres

The initial aim of WARDA was to have an entirely native West African organization that would apply the latest in rice technology to the problems peculiar to their area, but political interference meant that WARDA never functioned effectively. By the end of 1986, with CGIAR having resolved to continue its support of the organization, Omond Solandt was asked to coach those involved in it on how to operate within a CG style of centre. In 1987 he made three trips to Africa and, while there and in subsequent meetings, worked to ensure that an effective structure and Board were put in place. His official involvement with WARDA ended about August, 1987.

The correspondence, minutes, background papers, reports, photographs and publications provide detailed information about the problems WARDA faced and the problems Solandt and others encountered in resolving them.

When IRRI was founded in the 1960s, with headquarters in Manila, its mandate was to improve the productivity of the rice farmers, especially in the poor parts of Asia. While it was outstandingly successful, by the late 1980s serious management problems had arisen. In 1988 Dr. Solandt was invited to participate in a review of the Institute.

His summary of his activities, the correspondence, panel discussions, and the drafts of reports in this series document the issues that were investigated and the recommendations that were made.
