Biographical Sketches

Georges Maximilien Antoine Grube, classicist, Trinity College professor, and active member in the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation (CCF) and New Democratic Party (NDP), was born in Antwerp, Belgium, on 3 August 1899, the son of Antoine and Marie Reiners. At the beginning of the Great War in 1914 he emigrated to England where he attended King Edward's High School, Birmingham. He served briefly with the Belgian army towards the end of the war and after the cessation of hostilities he acted as an interpreter to British forces in Belgium. He completed his education at Emmanuel College, Cambridge, where he graduated with a B.A. in classics in 1922 and an M.A. in 1925. It is perhaps by this time that he started generally using the name George Maximilian Antony Grube. He became a naturalized British subject on 25 January 1924, and on 7 August he married in London Gwenyth Deen Macintosh, a fellow graduate in classics at Cambridge.

After four years as a lecturer at the University College of Swansea, Wales, George Grube came to Toronto in 1928 to take the position of Professor of Classics at Trinity College. He acted as head of the Department of Classics at Trinity College from 1932 to 1965 and as head of the Graduate Department of Classics at the University of Toronto from 1951 to 1966. He retired from Trinity College in 1968, but was re-appointed as a special lecturer during 1968-69 and became emeritus professor of classics in 1969.

As a classical scholar, G.M.A. Grube is best known as author of Plato's Thought (1935), The Drama of Euripedes (1941), A Greek Critic: Demetrius on Style (1961), and The Greek and Roman Critics (1965), and as translator of Plato's The Republic (1974), a work that continues to be widely used. He published over 30 articles in various scholarly journals. A founding member of the League for Social Reconstruction, he served as president of the Toronto branch in 1934-35, and he was managing editor of the Canadian Forum from 1937 to 1941. His interest in both cultural and political affairs found further scope in writing political pamphlets and in making frequent contributions to the Canadian Forum and the New Commonwealth. He was also a member of the Toronto Labour Council and of the Civil Liberties Association of Toronto.

Grube became a member of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation in 1934; he was elected as the first Ontario vice-president and served as president in the 1940s, was a member of the C.C.F. National Council, and president of the C.C.F. in Ontario. He was elected to serve as trustee for Ward 1 to the Toronto Board of Education in 1942 and 1943. He was the C.C.F. candidate in the riding of Toronto Broadview in the general elections of 1940, 1945, and 1950, but was not successful. In 1961 he was co-chairman of the founding convention of the N.D.P. He wrote numerous articles and pamphlets on the C.C.F. and the N.D.P.

Grube was elected a fellow of the Royal Society of Canada in 1951. His book, The Greek and Roman Critics, was winner of the American Philological Association's Award of Merit in 1965. After his retirement he was honoured with a festschrift, "Studies Presented to G.M.A. Grube on the Occasion of His Seventieth Birthday," published in Phoenix in spring 1969. In 1973 he was awarded an honorary degree by the University of Victoria and in 1977 was awarded the Canada Coronation Medal. G.M.A. Grube died in Toronto on 13 December 1982.

Gwenyth Deen Macintosh Grube, classicist, teacher, and active member in the C.C.F. and N.D.P., was born 24 September 1900 in London, England. In 1919 she entered Girton College, University of Cambridge, where she gained Part I of the Classical Tripos in 1921 and Part II in 1922 and received an M.A. degree in Classics. She continued her studies in 1922, doing postgraduate work at Bryn Mawr in Pennsylvania. Gwenyth Macintosh met George Grube at Cambridge, and after their marriage in 1924 she taught Latin and Greek at Bedales, a co-educational boarding school in Hampshire. She came to Canada in 1928 when her husband was appointed a professor at Trinity College. Gwenyth Grube returned to England for the period 1932 to 1934 with her two children in order to teach at Dartington Hall, a progressive school in Totnes, Devon.

A supporter of the Labour Party in England since her college days, Gwenyth Grube joined the C.C.F. in 1934. In the 1950s she was a member of the Ontario C.C.F. Provincial Executive. She ran unsuccessfully in 1945 for election as trustee of the Toronto Board of Education in Ward I, a post her husband had held previously. She was the C.C.F. candidate for the riding of Eglinton in the federal election of 1957. She was always particularly interested in educational and welfare issues, and a number of her articles were published in various journals. After her children were adults, she was a part-time teacher at the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto in the 1950s. Along with Agnes Macphail she was an active member of the board of the Elizabeth Fry Society. Gwenyth Grube died in Toronto on 24 March 1987.

George and Gwenyth Grube had three children: Antonia (Toni) Joan (m. Swalgren), born in England in 1927, John Deen (1930-2008), born in Toronto, and Jennifer Julia (m. Podlecki), born in Toronto in 1935.

SERIES 5: Professional Subject Files and Related Correspondence

Dates of creation: 1939 – 2011

Extent: 15 cm of textual records

Scope and content:

This series consists of subject files, arranged alphabetically, with related correspondence on topics that were of interest to G. M. A. Grube. Topics seem to focus primarily on secondary education and include debates around academic freedom, higher education in Canada, Thesaurus Linguae Graecae, and reports of the Trinity College Council. There is also a file of newspaper clippings about the Hepburn Controversy which took place in 1939 while Grube was a professor at Trinity College. At a C.C.F. convention Grube openly criticized the Canadian defense budget, purportedly stating that it would be a "waste of public funds" if the money went to military expenses rather than towards social services; he also supposedly criticized the budget as being in support of British interests instead of Canadian. This resulted in a storm of counter criticism, led by Ontario Premier Mitch Hepburn, upon Grube and fellow professor Frank Underhill of University College. The controversy snowballed into an issue of freedom of speech and eventually was resolved. Series is arranged alphabetically.

There are photos of G. M. A.'s adolescence in England, in the First World War, at Emmanuel College, Cambridge, when he was courting Gwenyth, and later when they left England together with daughter Antonia. There are photos from both sides of the family, including G. M. A.'s sister, her husband, and their children, his mother, father, cousins, aunts, and uncles, as well as Gwenyth's mother and brothers.
