About this Finding Guide

This finding guide provides a description of the records in the Video Recordings of Nouwen Series of the Henri Nouwen fonds. It has been prepared by exporting archival descriptions from the in-house database of The Henri J.M. Nouwen Archives and Research Collection. It consists of a series-level description followed by sub-series, sub-sub-series, and item level descriptions. All descriptions follow the Canadian descriptive standard Rules for Archival Description.

Finding guides have been created for the following series in the Henri Nouwen fonds:

1. Manuscripts
2. Calendar files
3. Personal records
4. Publisher files
5. Teaching materials
6. Nouwen’s education records and study notes
7. Published works
8. Video recordings
9. Sound recordings
10. Collected materials
11. Administrative resources
12. Ephemera and artifacts

The user of this finding guide will notice that some material in the Video Recordings of Nouwen Series may be restricted. A note will describe the reason for the restriction. Special permission is required to consult restricted material.

A spell check has been completed on this Finding Guide but other errors, even factual, may be evident. We’d be happy to hear of any such occurrences to assist us in correcting these errors.

Users should be aware that the information in this finding guide will be subject to small and large modifications depending on processing decisions of the future. The Nouwen Archives database remains the most up-to-date source for descriptions of the Nouwen fonds.

All records in this finding guide are housed in the Special Collections and Archives of the John M. Kelly Library. To consult these records please contact the archivist for the Nouwen Archives at nouwen.archives@utoronto.ca to make an appointment. For more information about the Henri J.M. Nouwen Archives and Research Collection please visit http://stmikes.utoronto.ca/kelly/nouwen/default.asp.

ITEM TITLE: Communion as the source of Christian leadership : Honorary Degree Convocation / Earlham School of Religion

PHYSICAL FORM: moving images

DATE(S): January 30, 1991

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: 1 videocassette : VHS.

SCOPE AND CONTENT: Item consists of a video recording of an address Nouwen gave to accept an honourary degree from Earlham School of Religion on January 30, 1991.

Summary of address

Introduced by a former student Henry Freeman

I.
Explanation of Communion with God as a series of concentric circles.
Reference to the passage in Luke about Jesus spending the night in solitary communion with God, then returning to his disciples (including Judas) and later going amongst a crowd to minister and heal.

Central Circle: Communion with God
Second Circle: Communion with Community (disciples)
Third Circle: Ministry through words and healing

Communion is the source of Love
Communion as Connectedness
Communion as Spirit, as a breathing between Father
This relationship between Jesus Christ is both totally unique and totally mutual, and it is called Spirit.

Henri says he is convinced more than ever that all human beings are called to Communion with God. The degree to which a person tastes this relationship will determine their degree of integration into society, how much they can contribute to society. By not acknowledging Communion, an individual will become manipulative and violent in their relations with others. Lacking Communion, people will turn to popularity, success and power in attempts to grasp at Belonging.

It is important that Communion takes place at ‘Night’ in this passage of Luke because night is when we (and Jesus) are tempted to seek Communion outside our relationship with God.

II.
Out of Communion will grow Community.
References St. Francis, St. Thérèse, Dorothy Day, St. Bernard, St. Ignatius who formed communities as a fruit of this Communion with God.
Mentions the importance of the Quaker tradition and his experiences at Pendle Hill in the development of his ideas about Communion.

Following Communion, you will find yourself calling to people or find people gathering around you.
BUT: Community is a place where you will always be reminded that it (community) cannot give you that which you truly desire, Communion with God. Which will push you back to solitary Communion.
There is always a discordant note in communities (the person you least want to live with will be there in the community in which reside) (example of Judas)
One needs community – it will constantly challenge you not to expect from people that which only God can give (Love).
Community is a place of detachment
Community is the place where you live out Communion and then are called to Solitude
Solitude and Community can never be separated.

III.
Community will lead you to ministry. Ministry must be taught communally in groups. Henri mentions that of late he has found that Ministry has become highly individualized. By ministering in groups, one is prevented from manipulating the Good News, one is not tempted to believe that they are the sole source of Truth etc. In Ministry, we are called to proclaim that Communion with God is being offered to all people. The Spirit of God blows where it wants. Healing and Liberation comes from knowledge that God is offering us Communion.

The Love you crave is available, and you can forgive each other for not being God.

IV. Ministry right now, the lives of everyone present, our reality has changed in the last few weeks because we are now at war (The Gulf War). This fact colours our souls. It is a very dark and dangerous atmosphere. How are we going to live and minister in a world that is in full agony?

Your First responsibility is not to change the world but to prevent the world from changing you. Television, News, Media will broadcast dark news that pounds on your heart – don’t let the Darkness take away your connection and Communion with God. Don’t let the Dark rip out the most precious gift of Communion.

Henri mentions Biblical quote of people ‘dying of fear’. Keep your head erect in the face of the Son of Man. Proclaim that this war is unjust. Receive Communion at the mountaintop. We do not receive Communion by changing the world, change is not a condition of prophecy.

1.10.6. HENRI NOUWEN FONDS - VIDEO RECORDINGS OF NOUWEN - VIDEOCASSETTES ACCUMULATED BY NOUWEN

ITEM TITLE: Henri J.M. Nouwen: April 3, 1996 interview / University of Notre Dame Alumni Continuing Education
PHYSICAL FORM: moving images
DATE(S): April 3, 1996
PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION: 1 videocassette (51 min): VHS.
SCOPE AND CONTENT: Item consists of a video recording of an interview with Nouwen at L'Arche Daybreak for the University of Notre Dame Alumni Continuing Education on April 3, 1996. Nouwen spoke on caring for aging parents and the spiritual challenges of aging. The video is of high quality, although it is not possible to hear the questions of the interviewer. Nouwen covers many themes including belovedness, death, dying, caring, caregivers, aging, care, cure, and spiritual disciplines. Nouwen identifies aging as a letting go of our identity as what we do, what we earn etc. and learning our true identity as the Beloved sons and daughters of God. He suggests that aging brings us closer to our true identity. Aging is about becoming more dependent but it offers us the space to find the truth of who we are. This is the great spiritual challenge of aging.

He addresses some of the following questions:

How do we overcome our fear of aging? Answer: We require a discipline that reminds us constantly of being the Beloved. These disciplines are: friendship, prayer, community, and celebration of life. Again the spiritual challenge is how do I let go and discover the deeper truth of who I am.

How to be a good caregiver? Answer: Nouwen refers to the gospel which says "Blessed are the poor" and exclaimed that we are all poor. The caregiver must believe and perceive that God's blessing is rooted in the poverty of the poor. To be a good caregiver we must start discovering the gift our aging parent has to offer us. One of these gifts is to be called back to the centre of your being. All the work of caring for the aging can make us resentful, but we have to make an inner shift that allows the parent to give us the gift of going deeper within ourselves to find out what life is all about. Burnout happens when a caregiver does not receive the gifts of the poor. It requires a discipline to receive and we can only do this if we are well cared for. Need to constantly renew perspective on what we are doing and live joyfully receiving the gifts of the dying. This is an enormous spiritual challenge - to discover the gifts of aging and dying people.

To be really present to the person dying (ministry of presence); know the value of the ministry of absence and when to set some limits to look after your own needs; take time out to be with people who can support you. The most difficult thing is to be half way there and resentful. Be fully present for shorter periods of time.

Care means to struggle with. It is the same word as compassion. To care is to be with people in their weakness, pain and struggle without needing to cure. All you need to say is "I love you and really want to be with you, even if I can't cure you." Joy comes from being with. It is hard to be with people we can’t change, but you can develop a spiritual discipline to care rather than cure.

Nouwen also emphasized the importance of the caregiver coming to terms with their own mortality. He reminds the interviewer that aging and dying don’t start at the end of life, but that we are all in the process of aging and dying. Compassion means "I am with you because I know in my own self that I too am dying, that I am on the same journey as you." The caregiver needs to feel solidarity and intimacy with the person dying in order for care to be possible. Not only does the caregiver need to be in touch with their own dying, they need to learn the discipline to deal with little disappointments as well.

Nouwen talks about the reasons for his decision to leave Yale and Harvard. He says: "I realized that to get to the core of my being, to move to a different plateau I needed to be more focused on the poor and the weak. I knew that by connecting myself with the poor they would lead me to the core of life. They would allow me to find the blessing they had for me.

Regarding his accident in 1989: Through this near-death experience Nouwen learned the importance of forgiveness and what is important in life. He explains that although he is still compulsive in some regards, underneath is a sense of being God’s beloved son and that the people he meets are God’s beloved sons and daughters too. It is through this common identity that we can meet each other.

Regarding his father: He was extremely grateful for the time he was having with his 93 year old father. He says: "I am immensely grateful for the time I spent with him, just for him."

Regarding dying: He mentions the gospel story when Jesus says "It is good for you that I am dying because I can send you my spirit". He goes on to say that most people who are dying say "how much can I still do?". But the real question is: "how can I prepare myself so my death becomes a gift for those I leave behind?". The question of aging spiritually is "How can I make my life a gift for others?”. This is aging into life. Of course there will be grief and mourning, but a person dying spiritually can say "I am ready to go. I hope you are ready to receive the Spirit of love that I will send you."

Reads from his book about his grandmother's death.

Alludes to death of Connie Ellis to say that being with her while she was dying brought him to an inner place of silence.

He concludes with some practical advice about how to dying people:
- speak but also be quiet
- touch if appropriate and just be there
- ask "do you like to pray?"
- "do you want me to read something"
- "do you want more/less visitors?"
- "do you want to be alone for awhile?"
- "is there anyone you would like to see?"
- "can I write a letter for you?"
- treat them like friends
- take time for your own life
- be clear when you are coming back and stick to it
- invite people like priests etc.
- visit like it is a privilege, try to give words to your affection, "I know it is hard for you, but I am here."

Life is an interruption of eternity, for what? For humans to have a chance to say to God I love you too.
